

Cooperative School of Christian Mission is a runaway success!

We had so much fun while at Cooperative School of Mission. Here are a few highlights from this years' Cooperative School. Velma Hull was unable to join us due to health concerns, but that did not stop her spirit from joining us as she sent a letter to us and included a cashiers check for $1175.00 to be used for the Sudan wells that are being constructed as a mission project. As we remember from previous years, that Velma and her family do this by rolling change. In light of that spirit, some of the ladies of United Methodist Women, started collected change while at School of Mission this year. Way to go ladies!

This year we had 251 people registered with 53 first timers. The United Methodist Women collected $1364.00 during our offering to help Mission. Edith Triplett and Paula Ackerson thanked everyone for all the donations that were received to help Joplin Tornado victims and to thank everyone for all the school supplies that were collected during the In-gathering this year.

Hands on Mission produced several hospital outfits for the Haitian Children. Several ladies helped out and enjoyed doing God's work. Jean DeHardt and Nadine Meyer really worked hard on all of these outfits and will continue to do them in their local units as well. Please join us next year for more fun. The dates next year are July 26-29 at Fayette at Central Methodist University.
